El Camino college is a particular college. It has its own area, and Compton has its own area. Residents of Compton identify with Compton and El Camino residents identify with El Camino. Compton Community College needs to stay with Compton and El Camino need to stay El Camino. They shouldn't have to cross names and borders.

It's not necessarily the college's fault. It was the people who were managing the college's fault. It was the people who were managing the college who mishandled the credits. So I don't think the school should suffer for mistakes that the management makes.

The community itself could have cleaned up and taught people what to do. It's the same old thing instead of outsiders. They don't live in the community or know the community. It's been practiced over and over. I don't think it had to happen. We didn't need people from other communities to teach anyone in our community how to act. This is a continuous who, what, where and how, who runs the hospital, schools, and teach our children. Know your history.
